🗺️ Trekking 🏛️ Culture 🌿

There are no words beside 'paradise' to depict Bali – an island blessed by the gods, according to Balinese, at the very least by nature, according to travellers. Walking on the trails of the gods, you will discover landscapes with nothing to envy the masterpieces of impressionist painters: terraced rice fields, volcanoes towering above clouds and dense tropical forests, an island of great contrast...

Bali is more than a marvel of nature! Spiritual development is also a major part of its inhabitants' life. Centuries of practically uninterrupted cultural continuity have preserved Hindu beliefs, therefore a unique organization of daily life where everybody, from young children to elder people, has a role to play. Naturally gracious, their religious rites and traditional customs emphasize Bali's beauties. Ceremonies, dances, processions to temples and other daily activities reinforce this unique culture.

Though jealously preserving most of their past, Balinese have always welcomed new and innovative elements, brought up by changing times or borrowed from abroad, thus creating a unique paradox and an open-minded community, which you are to join for a 13 day discovery journey.

Day 7. The lakes area

Lake Bratan ♡

Bedugul ♡

Munduk - Lake Bratan

- Today's walk brings us to Candi Kuning, along Tamblingan and Buyan volcanic lakes. These twin lakes were formed in 1818, after a major landslide divided the existing lake in two. This very scenic trek is a great opportunity to learn about local people and agriculture while walking along the edge of beautiful tropical forests.
- We visit the famous Hindu-Buddhist temple complex of Ulun Danau, an absolutely charming site with its huge banyan tree standing near the entrance. One of the temples, isolated on a small island, reflects its 11-tier pagoda on the still waters of the lake.

Lake Bratan - Bedugul

- We have time to contemplate this beautiful landscape before continuing to the picturesque market of Bedugul, then on to village of Catur, located halfway between Lake Bratan and Mt Batur.

Toyabungkah ♡

Bedugul - Toyabungkah

- We then head to the huge Batur caldeira, passing through Catur area, renowned for its orange and coffee plantations. We reach Batur volcano (1,717 m) and enjoy from Penelokan (literally meaning 'look-out') a superb view over the lake lying at its foot. The large size of its crater (14 km across) implies that Mt. Batur used to be a much larger mountain (certainly as tall as Mt. Agung), which blew its top thousands of years ago. Now, this old crater is half-filled with a huge lake, the largest of Bali. Its other half is cultivated and covered with lava fields. The blackened cone of Mt. Batur sits in the middle of this stunning panorama. We carry out our ascent of Mt. Batur through its old lava flows, and skirt around its four craters.

🚗 - ⌚ 2h
Tirtagangga ♡

Toyabungkah - Mt Batur

- We start to climb Mt Batur before the end of the night. We first hike up towards the oldest crater. Then we walk our way down along the adjoining craters before resting at a close but safe distance from the latest and most active crater.

Mt Batur - Kehen Temple

- The afternoon, we visit the second temple, Kehen (often considered to be the most attractive temple in Bali), in the vicinity of Bangli. This temple is said to be one of the most aesthetic in Bali.

Kehen Temple - Tirtagangga

- Then, we set off to Tirtagangga, officially known as Tirta Ayu ('lovely waters'). We discover its cool, spring-fed pools (which literally means 'Ganges' water') pleasure palace of a former king of Karangasem. These dip pools, surrounded by captivating terraced rice fields, are particularly refreshing after our long drive in. Overnight at a local inn (losmen).

Day 10. The original Bali

- 🕒 4h

Tenganan 📍

🚗 - 🕒 1h

Sidemen 📍

Tirtagangga - Tenganan

- We walk through fields until the Bali Aga (or 'original Balinese') village of Tenganan. This village has preserved its traditional Balinese culture as it was prior to the influence of the Majapahit Hindu kingdom. It is also famous throughout Bali for the magical textiles its artists produce (including the famous double ikat cloths, which rank among the masterworks of Southeast Asia), which are also used by other Balinese communities in their worship. The concept of territorial and bodily purity and integrity plays a main role in the culture of this village. For this reason, outsiders are welcome from noon until evening, at what point they are kindly asked to leave. Some say that footprints of visitors are literally erased after they leave.

Tenganan - Sidemen

- Our next stop is Sidemen. Traditional varieties of Balinese rice are grown in Sidemen and the scenery is indeed gorgeous.
